Hey everyone. It's been a while. I hope y'all are doing well.

You may have noticed the server's name is different and the profile picture is gone. I never thought I'd say this, but the reason is because unfortunately, I have made the difficult decision to leave the internet, at least for a while. Hence, I am also leaving the server, and it wouldn't make sense for the server to be named after me if I'm not in it. This is the hardest decision I've ever made and it's not easy for me. I know this is very sudden and it may be a shock for some of you and I'm really sorry. I will explain why I'm leaving later on in this message. For now, I have given the ownership to Romy. However, Romy isn't sure if she wants to be the main owner or not. So if anyone would like to be the new owner, you can let her know and she can transfer the ownership to you. The server can be renamed and changed however you'd like.

(If anyone outside the server is reading this, yes I did have a private server and that's where this was posted).

If you're wondering where I've been in the past month, I've been focusing on myself, my mental health, and real life. I've spent a lot of time with my dad doing several real life activities together and discussing things about my future. I finally got to spend a bit of time with my cousins which was nice. I have recently started doing community work at a local food bank which has given me a feel of what it's like to have a real job. And hopefully, I will slowly and surely work my way up to getting one.

Thankfully, my mental health has been improving and my headspace is a lot clearer than it was before. I'm glad I finally stepped out of my comfort zone to do this. Now, I know a few people reading this are probably facepalming right now considering I've been suggested to do this several times. You were right, and you have every right to be annoyed with me. I was being so stubborn, paranoid, and even almost afraid of the real world due to past experiences/trauma which I stupidly held onto. I really wish I had done this sooner, cuz if I did, I think a LOT of what happened could've been avoided. But, better late than never I guess, and I'm at least proud that I finally was able to do it now.

Now, you may be asking why I'm leaving even though I'm doing better. Well.. the more my headspace clears, and the more clearly I'm able to reflect on my poor actions, the more embarrassed and ashamed I feel. From the end of June until the start of September, I was at my all-time lowest. I had no clear thought process whatsoever on anything I was saying or doing and I started getting too sensitive and bothered by almost everything. I was not myself at all. I could say it was due to how much has changed and how much I've lost this year, and I just got fed up and didn't want to lose anything else. I could also say how bad my mental health was which is why I was so paranoid and acted out without thinking. But in reality, that doesn't really matter. It's no excuse and it's still my fault. I brought this on myself. I'm the one who let all these things get the better of me and I let my mental health decline that badly, causing me to behave so irrationally.

Instead of focusing on myself like I've been trying to do now, I focused WAY too much on certain people for help, comfort, mental support, and reassurance. While it is okay to ask for friends' help sometimes, doing it too much will bother and pressure them. This was a huge mistake I made, and it caused me to become clingy, attention seeking, toxic, selfish, and even obsessive. I ran straight through the normal boundaries of friendships. Deep down, I knew my actions weren't right, but due to how unstable I was, I somehow convinced myself that I needed the attention and didn't stop to consider who I was affecting. In doing all this, I ended up hurting and mentally exhausting my closest friends. I feel absolutely horrible for the vast amount of stress and pressure I put on them.. Ultimately, I am responsible for my own mental health and my actions. Regardless of what's happening or how I'm feeling, the same rules and boundaries that apply to everyone apply to me. This is something I already learned before that I somehow neglected. I had to find out the hard way how I've affected my friends in order to finally work on myself instead of relying on them. I should have never let it get to this point, and it's sad that it did. I'm beyond disgusted in myself for that. Clearly, I got too attached to the internet and people online over the years which was detrimental to my well-being and it brought the worst out of me.

To everyone I've hurt, mentally drained, or bothered in any way from my horrendous actions, I am incredibly sorry.. I know that me saying this might sound empty or stale at this point considering all the times I apologize, claim I have changed or will change, but end up subconsciously making the same or similar shitty mistakes again. I've seemingly been negatively affecting people since 2015 which is just fucking ridiculous. Even when I do change, it seems like I end up relapsing one way or another when bad things happen again. This most recent relapse was my worst one yet. I did the very thing I promised everyone I would never do. I reverted almost fully back to my old self... I'm just embarrassed and disappointed you guys have had to see this horrible side of me once again. I looked back on recordings from July and August and I cringed at how I acted in some of them. I can tell I was not myself whatsoever. While I am doing better mentally now, the guilt and shame I feel when reflecting on my behavior is immense.

This may be hard to believe at this point, but I really truly do not mean to hurt people. I really don't. I truly do love and care for everyone I'm friends with. Throughout my time on the internet, I've always wanted to have a positive impact on people. Whether it's helping people out with anything they need, doing good things for them, telling them how great and/or talented they are, etc. I don't do these things just so they can trust me, so I can feel good about myself, or just to get close to them. I don't do it for any selfish gain. I do it cuz I love to help people, even if I'm not always good at it, and I want to show I love and care for them. Whenever I've said or done good things for people, I meant it. All the times I've said you guys are like a family to me, I meant it. Although, I know my behaviour hasn't always reflected that. While I may have spread some positivity, the fact that I've caused and spread huge amounts of negativity online for so long is upsetting.

Thinking about all this, I've been seriously debating on what I should do and after doing some serious self-reflection, this is the reason why I've decided to step away. So for the time being, I'm going to be completely offline and I will be deactivating almost all my accounts. I really don't want to lose you all, but at the same time, I seriously do not want to hurt or upset anymore people online. Especially not any of you. I've caused so much damage throughout my time on the internet and I really don't want to cause anymore.. I will admit, at times it has felt like no matter what I say or do, I always end up bothering someone either inside or outside my friend group. It also does not help that I've made people feel like they can't be honest with me when I bother them, or people act like they understand me when in reality they think otherwise. So I can never be sure if someone is being truthful about their feelings towards me. I've never had good communication skills my whole life, partially due to my disabilities, which is why I'm not always aware of what I say or do or how it can be interpreted. These are the main reasons why I get paranoid and constantly feel the need to apologize. But that is still no excuse.

At this point, I feel like me staying offline will prevent any possibility of someone being hurt by me again. Part of me feels like I don't deserve to come back after all the damage I caused. I don't know when or if I will return. If I do, I will very likely be changing my name and OC. My current one is just a reminder of the past and my mistakes at this point. So I would probably just want to start over fresh completely. What I choose to do will depend on what happens over time. Whatever it is, I hope you know that I'm doing it for my own sake and everyone else's. Sometimes people need to make tough decisions or move on if they want to live a better life. This is definitely proof that this is true. I may not necessarily leave forever. I still need time to figure myself out and fully decide what I'm going to do.

I would love to be back and have more fun with y'all. But what's stopping me is the overwhelming guilt of my wrongdoings, and the thought of me possibly upsetting someone again and not always knowing if I did. I feel so horrible and embarrassed that I don't even feel comfortable coming back now. I'm also worried about my mental health potentially declining again because of this too.

Again, I am very sorry for anything I ever did to anyone that was wrong. It was never my intention to do so. I owe it to everyone I love and care about to become a better person. I need to actually lock in and work on myself. That is where my focus has been and will be. As I said, I will be completely offline so if you send me a DM, I will not receive it. Romy is the only person I will remain in contact with, at least for the time being. So if there is anything you would like to say to me before I go, feel free to send it here in the server or to Romy directly, and she will send it to me. If anyone would still like to stay in contact with me for some reason, then you can also let her know, and I'll consider it as time goes on.

I really miss you guys. I'm sorry I haven't been the best friend or brother you deserved. Admittedly, it's been very hard when self-reflection and guilt really sinks in. But bettering my mentality and seeing things in a much better perspective with a clearer mindset has been worth it. I promise I will continue to work on myself and hopefully improve my real life. I will always love and cherish all the great moments and memories we've had together. I'll never forget them and I'll never forget you guys. I do hope we can see each other again and possibly create even more fun memories together. I don't know when or if that will happen, but only time will tell. However, if you wish to not associate with me anymore after this, I completely understand.

If anyone outside the server is wondering what happened to me, feel free to send them this document too.

I love you all very much. I'm sorry again for all my wrongdoings, especially recently. If this is truly the end, thank you for everything. I wish you all nothing but the very best. Take care of yourselves, stay positive, stay healthy, and stay awesome.

Bye for now everyone.

Yours truly,

Rye